Agreed Anne,

I talked yesterday with Phil Zamora and Thomas Wheaton, the DFO regional staff handling the file, and Derek McDonald the regional CEAAgency contact. The proponent does not know the project is being referred to panel. He knows that a Comprehensive Study is required on the terminal and that the DFO review of the quarry isn't complete - so we don't know yet if there are DFO triggers for a CEAA assessment of the quarry. However, the he is also aware that it could be referred to panel at any time before or during the Comprehensive Study.

Hi all, at this time, there are many unconfirmed pieces of information flying around, as far as I'm aware, the proponent has not been informed yet although there are plans to. I think it would be prudent to keep things under wraps until we get guidance from MO and other senior managers as to next steps. It would also be prudent to use our communications wisely...

Thanks. Will keep you posted.

Anne
