This Act which contained the right on the part of the Treasury Board to manage the Public Service including determining the terms and conditions of employment did not extend to any matter expressly provided for in any other statute.

Larocque v. Canada (Minister of Fisheries and Oceans) (2006), 270 D.L.R. (4th) 552 (F.C.).

The Minister of Fisheries and Oceans did not have the power to finance scientific research activities of the Department of Fisheries and Oceans by issuing licences to fish and sell snow crab. The Minister financed his scientific research program without first appropriating the funds necessary and by misappropriating, for all intents and purposes, resources that did not belong to him. The Minister confused public funds and public domain. Without appropriating public funds he appropriated public domain.

(The next page is F8-19)

Appeal from a judgment that the Crown was not liable for the failure to pay interest on the proceeds resulting from a seizure and sale of fish. Because the proceeds of the sale of the fish did not belong to the government, they were included in the definition of "public money" as money received by a public officer under the Fisheries Act, R.S.C. 1970, c. F-14, to be disbursed for a purpose specified in or pursuant to that Act. The Crown's retention of that money for eight years without payment of interest equated with a taking of property, in contravention of the most minimal duty to the person whose money it was. Nothing in any statute authorized that taking. Judgment should be entered for the amount of interest outstanding.
